Stream of Consciousness

Angle 1

In modern literature quite many new trends appeared. Among them there was "stream of consciousness", the theory of which was discovered by William James, and American psychologist Fitzgerald utilized this method in novel writing, creating new features in deepening the theme of the novel.

Angle 2

Generally speaking, the novel of "stream of consciousness" is just written against the order of time or logic, thus making the plot queer. But through this queerness, the reader is enchanted into the psychological world within heroes and the chaotic world without them.
